Heated Rivalry Fandom Culture: How a Fandom Made François A Villain
A Summary of Twitter Fandom Culture, through February 5, 2026.

by Anonymous

For the first few weeks of Heated Rivalry's airing, the fandom was (mostly) thriving and unified. The timeline was mainly book discussions, television film analysis, support of the characters - people genuinely liked the vibe of the overall fandom on Twitter.

There were some earlier cracks in the unity of the fandom (January 7th being a turning point, December 21st being the first noted fan's turning point within this document, and it came from Francois taking a pic with his dog), but January 13-15 was a major turning point: Francois and Connor were seen, unwantedly, in New York by a stalker and then leaving the LA airport after baggage claim. (They were filming Late Night with Seth Meyers and Kelly Clarkson show, respectively). Despite the Heated Rivalry show specifically dealing with celebrity privacy, the fandom crafted beliefs they felt must be true, that the man who sought privacy to the point of conflict with other tv shows would suddenly forego privacy for self-gain, without telling his co-star.

This sighting of coworkers on a business trip to do interviews, to fans overly invested in their fandom and with little sense of reality versus fictional television, felt like a shift from their given expectation (and entitlement) of seeing Hudson and Connor together, for events and press. It was visible on timeline in that 48hr-72hr span, how people in fandom were getting radicalized via hit tweets that shared cropped images.

Also, the fandom landscape is interesting because the unprecedented pop culture virality of the show meant that many of the people arriving to these quote snippets were not around during the first week press coverage. They did not see the quotes live, nor understand the context in which they were given (like the Deadline article was written after only Episode 2, the week where there was a heavy press embargo on Episode 3, down to the episode title not being known until it aired. The interviewer didn't understand the dynamics of the characters and thus was shipping Shane and Scott, while Arnaud was not in a position to give spoilers to season 1 and season 2). He and every cast member would have been unable to say that Shane and Ilya end up together, happily. Later in the same interview, there's indications of who the couples are and how they influence each other, but the fandom does not read closely, and the fandom wanted to create a villain.

Instead, new fans were only seeing quotes after the fact, and notably seeing them in print format where all tone is removed. As WhatsChaos podcaster, and frequent interviewer of the cast and director and and author of Heated Rivalry had himself noted: "You shouldn't be allowed to aggregate François Arnaud quotes. Whatever he said, he said it far cheekier than your written word could suggest. You need to always write that he said it cheekily."

The fandom understood Arnaud's goofball delivery as he was defending the show, multiple times in December and early January, (many of these account sending hate in late January had "I love Francois" type tweets when the episode aired or at some point in December for him defending Hudson), but then - especially as agitators entered the fandom - they turned on him when it became convenient to paint him as their villain.

Arnaud had long been the champion for actor privacy, when Williams and Storrie were being harassed for questions of their personal life, in December. He pushed for people to stay out of the actors' personal lives, and he complimented Hudson and Connor as both more famous than him (100 to his 70, in his interview, and saying that in praise of them both.)

But, by January 20th, when Arnaud said “none of your [] business” about his dating life to Andy Cohen, receiving a hearty laugh from Andy in response, a few Heated Rivalry fans were saying that this response was terrible and he should have said he was single. The fans would prefer he answer invasive questions. They wanted this so that they could be validated in their shipping, for which his presence - even as a coworker or fellow friend - seemingly threatened. Many were posting weblinks to people associated with Arnaud, or bugging those people on Instagram. They did not know him, yet called him a “cheater” and a “homewrecker” based on no evidence of when things started and stopped. They felt they needed this harassment to protect their version of reality, to “protect” Storrie from people he knew and was willingly standing next to.

Much of the hate from Francois Arnaud comes from an interview done in December 4, 2025, via Deadline. The interview created no waves when first published. People spoke highly of it on the Heated Rivalry Reddit forum. Listening to it, auditorily, Francois gives excellent commentary on Scott and Kip’s romance, and how it influences Shane and Ilya’s, and how the show represents romance in an important way.

But, once sensing a threat in Arnaud calmly traveling with his co-worker, it was January 13th-January 14th when a radicalized section of the fandom forgot how to comprehend jokes and humor, and turned Arnaud’s millennial, self-deprecating speech patterns into perceived crimes.

They framed this as defending Hudson.

Hudson himself is a comedic joke-teller in interviewers, like when he gave high praise to Jacob Tierney as an “adequate director”, to the laughs of the audience before them, or called Connor “a terrible texter” on the very same podcast where Francois joked Hudson is “chronically online”, while Francois smiled. Friends who know each other can share the positives and weaknesses of each other, and they can talk in sarcasm and jokes. Toxic fans who are idolizing get uncomfortable with anything other than their fave getting 100% praise, and want room only for their fave – not their fave’s friends being treated with care.

The fandom became filled with “solos”, “akgaes”, and -cels, which as far as I know is a suffix that comes from the word incel. These fans exhibited many of the behaviors you’d expect from people with these naming conventions.

One of the most impressive examples of the fandom’s weaponized comprehension of Arnaud’s quotes came when the fandom turned his Men’s Health interview compliment that “Hudson skates hockey-style” into a perceived insult, for a tv role where Williams is portraying a hockey player.

“Lesbians love the show” is another one of Arnaud’s perceived crimes

"For some reason, lesbians love it,"

“There's something really joyous about the show's message, something hopeful. We're so over-informed now. It's really hard to just look at the news at all. There are characters with struggles on the show, but ultimately, you feel that pull toward happiness."

Racism — A major issue in the landscape right now is racism.

Hudson Williams is the primary target of the fandom's racism, with accounts like DudsonEnder allowed to thrive on Twitter, with thousands of followers and thousands of likes, despite that account also receiving thousands of reports for discriminatory behavior and targeted harassment of Hudson for his ethnicity.

Minority fans are the second biggest recipient of racism online, with several Black fans having been called the KKK/klan/n-word by both non-Black fans and fellow Black fans. Many of these incidents have occurred in twitter spaces.

The app's algorithm and infrastructure has absolutely played a role in developing the collective hole that is this new fandom space, by failing to remove racist tweets, and instead using them to farm large amounts of engagement which the app profits from.

Notably, Dudsonender is a blue checkmark account, so it may be getting paid by Twitter for publishing its racism.

Likewise, on the same platform, accounts making death threats of Francois Arnaud have not been suspended for these death threats. Instead, makers of these threats have thrived on getting more followers and attention from them. They created large groupchats and Twitter spaces where the hate could fester and foment. Many of their public insults and threats reference his queerness, his nationality, and his age. "Nuke Quebec" was written.

Viewing hate speech has an effect of creating even more retaliatory hate speech, and so one comment of extreme racism can generate thousands of interactions. It normalizes that language, and it allows virality to flourish from racist trolls online. The app hosting the hate speech has a role to play, and Twitter's hands-off moderation has been a driving factor in this.

Some of the twitter spaces were admitted by fandom participants to have used the N-word as a slur (these were anti-Francois fans, writing fiction about how the white leftist man was going to call them (). There were also threats of violence said in fandom Twitter spaces, mainly "Healing" spaces, coordinated by @pinkst3rs. While finalizing this, I entered a space and quickly found the space's speakers sharing a tweet that had a "kill yourself" message in letters to over 500 listeners. The space wasn't all bad, because they also were organizing a focus on removing DudsonEnder from platform - but it shouldn't take that much fandom effort to remove blatant, flagrant racist harassment that's occurred for weeks.

Racism has happened both from fandom outsiders (DudsonEnder), from Connor's inner fandom (there are some people writing evil white-is-better rhetoric), racism from Hudson's fans in the conversation about Francois (Natvi @MILF_R_HOT posting the N-word in quotation marks on top of Arnaud's face, to manufacture a quote not said by Arnaud), and in general, there's infighting: many Black fans report being called variations of the "kkklan", by non-Black fans, over the discussion of this trio of white and Asian actors, for the act of not supporting the same side in the shipping fight.

In total, thousands of very real and disgusting racist incidents have occurred in the past month. Racism in every form is unacceptable.

Separately, a group of “fans” have amassed on twitter, acting and roaming as internet trolls, and using the word ‘racism’ as a moral shield for their personal actions of online harassment, to justify their blatantly ageist, homophobic, and malicious attacks on an actor. The discord server messages are an example of the level of targeted hate toward Francois, that has no explanation of “well, other people were racist to me, so I can write slurs toward him or tell him to die.)

This coordinated, fomented hate campaign is the reason for this documentation project - seeing some people go “but the racism!”, and then THEM posting the n-word, them being some of the most virulent racists in-fandom.

There were also phantom racism, a move to protect Williams by seeing anything other than full support (read, visibility to fans at all times) as racism. There were racism claims for existing with dating rumors. Fans claimed it was racist to think someone was dating one person and not another person, even when you support all three people in the situation.

Existent racism within society, and the all-too-prevalent racism seen online and previously mentioned, was also causing people to invent racism where racism was not the most plausible explanation.

If Connor was not dating Hudson, if this life fact were to be true, it wasn’t necessarily because of racism (by either Connor, fans, or Francois), but rather because Hudson was in his own relationship. (While some things have been shared, it’s just good practice to remember we don’t know specifics - we don’t know these people! Uninvest from getting mad who your favorite celebrity stands next to, and be comfortable with them standing next to people you don’t like without inventing hate campaigns and telling them to die.

If Hudson wasn’t at Paris Fashion Week, it wasn’t because of racism by Crave or Bell Media’s production team picking who gets to wear which fashion house’s clothing, but because Hudson and Connor made a collective and individual choice that suited them, on where they attend in Milan and Paris. (It’s perhaps reasonable for people to ask and raise the “is this racism?” question, it’s another to attack Francois personally as racist for Hudson individually choosing not to go to Paris Fashion Week). That distinction is complex, and worthy of analysis.

This compilation of online internet discourse and hate is about the fandom’s move within the past two weeks (or longer, since late November) to make Francois Arnaud a phantom villain, and it goes about documenting their stated reasons for their hate, because the reasons are varied and change rapidly, and contain homophobia, ageism, xenophobia (anti-Francophone, anti-Quebec), racism (anti Black and anti Jewish racism appear here), and a lack of understanding of media (like photo credits and interview sentences). There are even those who say that they hate him because he was born.

This subsect of actor-hating fans are not focusing their attention on removing/deplatforming DudsonEnder, whose racism far exceeds compliments given by Francois to Hudson in interviews (update: as of February 5, the fandom has begun an anti-DudsonEnder campaign. Yeay for unity).

Instead of ending DudsonEnder, they are threatening the life of an actor on the show who Hudson has said “I love you” toward. Francois and Hudson kiss each other’s faces. These fans also have moved their death threats toward director Jacob Tierney.

In short, this subsect of the fandom is an existential threat on Heated Rivalry's cast and crew, and so a summary of the statements made by these 'fans' is recorded here. It would behoove HBO as a large corporation who received its most profitable purchase ever in acquiring the rights to this show, to step in and request Twitter address the more dangerous elements of the rhetoric online. Canada's government, led by Mark Carney, also wants to take claim for the success of the show, but has the power to regulate the hate made toward two Canadian actors, under Sections 319 or 320.1.

Examples of Twitter's platform allowing racism to thrive against Hudson Williams, rather than quickly removing the hate. Such posts get thousands of interactions.

Please do not send hate to the accounts listed in the fandom.

Documentation here of anti-Francois account discussion is for archival purposes, for analysis purposes of inappropriate anti-Francois fandom behavior toward him and other cast members, for analysis of how a sub-fandom radicalized itself in two weeks, and to help people understand the rhetoric used by this fandom subsect that intentionally crossed lines of decency with the goal of harming him, or unintentionally crossed lines (parasocial entitlement to decide who Connor can stand next to). Learning boundaries is important.

As the show enters into Season 2, I think it would be important for the promo fan content to include fandom etiquette. It can be dressed in hockey gear, laced with humor, and still set expectations. If expectations are not set, the -isms and phobias set in and the actors get harmed, especially the minority actors and queer actors and women. This is especially important for the Irina Foundation summer camp - for clear reasons. Bell Media and Crave and HBO and media producers across the industry should have safeguards in place to help actors facing abuse for the act of starring in Episode 3. (Can I say "starring in Episode 3?", or will I get harmed for even that?)

Also, of note, this document's representation of over a hundred fans with bad behavior, is less than 0.01% of the overall fandom. As mentioned, the infrastructure of social media amplifies the angriest voices. Do not generalize based on one account. Do focus on changing the structures first, instead of harassing other individual accounts

Accounts listed are also not all at the same level of hate. A few of them are there to show the radicalization process.

Some have been moderating fandom voices , while still expressing pointed dislike of Arnaud. Existing in this document simply means they shared their opinion online in the court of social media opinion and it was available to be documented.

One thing that I noticed, making the document, was that a primary issue was ageism moreso than I imagined it would be. Hudson's fans are young. This being a group television show rather than a solo individual fandom, the fans created an actor triangle around Hudson, Connor, and Francois. Some of the accounts, their only issue, or their main insult, is age. Not in the time traveling pedophilia (25 year old minor) way of @mercurified, but just age [@lesearth].

There were many forms of homophobia. Many of these fans do not think of what they are doing as homophobia, but it is.

One was the intersection of homophobia and relationship entitlement (parasocialism was the driving factor, that they can control how an actor moves and who an actor dates.)

Fan anxiety/anticipation, celebrating rising careers of two people they loved to watch on tv, and waiting day to day for the stars to have new appearances heightened the online parasocial management of Connor's movement and the frustration when that movement didn't meet expectations. They were saying his career was a flop the day before announcing a fashion ambassadorship. To what extent is the overexertion of fan control homophobia versus boundary crossing? There was certainly both occurring.

Some of the fans' concerns of racism toward Francois were reasonable fears that Francois, as Scott, would be replacing Shane on the show, when that was never the case (but snippet tweets were re-framed and cut by bad faith participants to stoke fandom fears - and they gained followers and likes doing so).

Another somewhat reasonable question was "why are Francois and Connor promoting things at the same time", "why isn't it Nadine on the same flight", or "why isn't Robbie getting promoted to equal measure as Scott", by fans not understanding that some of these outings weren't promotional, or that the cast billing was different than what they were told online (@kyksnhe was explicitly editing out photos of Francois in pictures with Jacob and Rachel), or that it was the individual choice of actors to move around as they see fit. There also were groupchats forming that were giving fandom explanations so it became parroted talking points that Scott doesn't have a role in Book 2, which is not the case. To what extent were evil people leading influenceable people to continue their mission, and to what extent did people join on the hate train in excitement and groupthink?

That lack of communication of fandom expectation from what was built in the Heated Rivalry and audio era was eventually eased by Hudson Williams' Wonderland interview hosted by Sophie Nelisse, and in Williams' January 31 posting. The post solved some issues while opening new issues.

A statement by Storrie affirming "I manage my own life" might eliminate some of the "Francois, #that evil storybook villain, he has booked flights right next to mine and sits two seats besides me and is plotting to get me." Which is outwardly ridiculous, but a narrative shared in-fandom amongst themselves.

The effect of the fans' writing is homophobia, and the adults should know better, but there is a sizeable part of the fandom that is falling down this pathway due to fan/idol protectionism, out of care (read: lack of giving actors' autonomy to make their own choices and associations), and who need a parasocial affirmation that a 25 year old is alright, and can make their own friendships. Ironically Storrie and Arnaud's protection from talking has led these fans to perceive it as clout chasing. Cloutchasers closing down their Instagram comments, clout chasers deleting friends lists, cloutchasers "not speaking out." In the end, nothing will get all people to leave them alone no matter what actions are taken.

Another form of homophobia that spiked on February 1st, after January 31st updates, was a fight over bisexuality and bi representation. Both Hudson and Francois would get called straight relentlessly (like the "straight king" post by @yosoymichael; Francois would be called "straight for 35 years" by Hudson's fans defending the ability to be bisexual with a girlfriend, Connor's solo and shipper fans also rushed to call unlabeled people "straight". Lateral biphobia on all sides, it was commit biphobia day on February 1st).

Notably the two people who can determine if Francois was “a cheater”, as is claimed pretty much only within the fandom (what a great fandom!) are Francois and the person he was seeing. The person he was seeing has not given comment about cheating, and has deleted posts about cheating published to their Instagram page. The fans who are making those claims, using the word “cheater”, are expressly boundary crossing. There is a group of fans who will show up to people saying “two people are in a relationship, good for them”, which could be a statement either right or wrong, and the fan’s response is going “so you think that’s cheating? And homewrecking? here’s how to reach the people in the situation”, and they do this out of “protection” - it is homophobia, outright. To label queer people as cheaters when you do not know if this information is true or not, because you read one website’s link and don’t have the wherewithal to understand how time works, or that website descriptions aren’t official announcements. Some of these are documented in the discourse below.

There was also open hate toward gay men merely existing. January 18 @wanghairong14 death threats, referencing AIDS, being the most famous of these threats. Notably, the hate ramped up after that January 14th moment where two actors were seen standing in the same airport.

The irony of the show is that it was about this: loving someone who society will be mad at you for loving. Even existing near someone, in a charity foundation setting. The fandom is moving like Rozanov antis who are trying to protect their Shayden ship, and harrassing Shane Hollander to “protect” him fron evil.

Another piece to remember in this (and I do feel odd humanizing the bigotry found in the document, but I think it’s also very important to remember) is that the fandom grew to be so big and so universal that intersecting groups who don’t normally communicate with each other could talk about a common interest, and at times just got mad at each other. Some of what is happening here with Francois Arnaud is that he’s the show’s “dad”, and not everyone’s going to love being around dad. This does not excuse hate campaigns against him, but it explains the impulse from which they begin, to then go and craft fictionalized reasons for their personal dislike.

There has been plenty of misogyny under the surface within the gay community’s rhetoric (Coleman Spilde’s transmisogyny-filled article for Salon), and there has been plenty of mlm homophobia within the queer women community (@Jessinomenon’s “we are literally in hell” tweet from January 22, about a queer television show carrying the torch), or the fujoshi / “can women watch men on television” arguments from December 8th or so.

Then, discussing fandoms that were now tuning into queer shows for the first time, either as 20 year olds in their first fandom and who have not yet learned boundaries, or straight women and men finding the show and bringing their heteronormativity, or their Gen X standards of snarking online (cue: @rosh _hoffman, the leader of “go closet yourself” and “you’re ruining your career” hate online, what a fan…; or Dan Powers and his misogynistic and racist-twinged comments sent during Episode 1, and so forth.

Tom Zohar and Michael (@yosoymichael) were examples of gay men tweeting more than was appropriate. They probably weren’t authorized to share what they did, those being comments for which they’d receive little pushback in their own social circles, but angering a room full of 20 year olds online, in the process. They did use language that would not be universally received - either because of racism and misogyny and ableism on Tom’s part, or the flippant word choice on Michael’s. The reactionary responses by the fandom had too much homophobia, and also racism toward Michael. The initial offenses did not match the hate levels directed back, when blocking may have been more appropriate, or reporting it if egregious.

One issue was that both sides (gay men vs young fans) had valuable lessons to share with the other group, and both sides were committing problems and at fault for some part of the communication breakdown.

In return, the language of twenty year olds making edgy death threats toward Francois 'as jokes', or discord servers of hate, and twitter speaking spaces of hate, was not going to be well-received by communities where Scott Hunter and Francois are important. There was hate on Francois because he was choosing to use his social media account like someone born in the 1980s, and not following the social media norms. A lack of social custom was perceived through ill-est intent.

Looking at some of the fans who created the issues, they were really excited - they were on the Hudson and Connor hype train. They went from daily content feeds, and a lot of joint promo work, to their well of content running dry and a lack of communication around expectations ("going on a break!" or "we won't be doing joint promo"). This shift - which was not the fault of Hudson and Connor, who were 1.5 months internationally famous - was part of what led to the social conditions for fans to dream up concerns for the "safety" of their fave. There could have been more parasocial hostage-type video check-ins, like filming 10 minutes of content once, to drip out in 30 second increments on off-days for the week of ghosting the fans. Or letting the fans know what your intent is, then pulling a three year Harry Styles vacay. Fandoms famously don't do well in "off" times, they find ways to make drama. Setting expectations eases anxiety.

The Heated Rivalry fandom experience Jan 14-February was too intense, full of bad behavior heavily influenced by the infrastructure of the online system of twitter and its rewarding of spreading misinformation without affixing links and citations. But it was speedrunning years of downtime fandom controversy, in its first hiccup phase. (This does not excuse the bad behavior, but contextualizes how everyone had just met, been bombarded with content, lovebombed, and then had a shift in messaging but without clear expectations and messaging. Lack of clear expectations led to people inventing their own explanations of why things happened, and Francois Arnaud's in-fandom reputation took the fall for this. Instead of going to the cottage, it was being cooped up in a cabin.)

This document is a study into one piece of one subfandom.
One point of this effort, in all seriousness, was to document how there were people posting swastikas and hate, saying the hard n-word, posting intentionally malicious libel, then complaining about fandom racism. Complaining about racism at times when their own homophobic actions were being addressed to them to fix. (@rozaniggas, @hudsbian (Kyra), and @MILFS_R_HOT are examples of the fandom phenomenon where fans would generate and post their own racism, and then try to attribute that edgy self racism onto others. @kyksnhe was also notable for pushing these hate processes. There was racism occurring throughout the fandom, and while fans (of all three inner fandoms) were absolutely committing racism towards others, there were also legitimate concerns of death threat level racism, raised by the Francois fans who simultaneously also want Hudson to experience a beautiful fandom experience without racism (You can want the best for both actors, who like each other).

Spending time writing you want to kill an actor is time that gets squandered in that discourse, as it poses an existential risk to the actors, rather than the combined community all peacefully unified, and focused on ending DudsonEnder and that account's racist words of hate.

These are my thoughts – I do not expect my thoughts to be 100% correct.
The fandom is built best when having multiple perspectives shared, each building upon on themselves as a strong group made better through discourse, not tearing down everyone else so that one person in the cast (your only-favorite) wins, to the point of harming their friends.

@alwaysbsumbody - “because why would you as a Hudson Williams fan account about his clothes be posting that annoying hag?” 27

@bichi_yal - blaming Francois for controlling if Bad Bunny wins AOTY, personally offended that Francois Arnaud did not want to sleep with Shane Hollander, “crying wolf and using all his powers: white victim and queer. Fuck you and your 3 fans bitch”; earlier loving Francois, calling him “handsome”, “well known”, “insane face card”, asking him to be on podcasts. Turn happened December 21, when upset people suggested “Francois basically confirmed” 29

@beysheaven - “francois has no business being with someone fifteen years younger than him (and who is starting his career) while fueling rumors that he's with him. he's WEIRD.” 31

@brokebackmnts - “it's clear that #he doesn't give a fuck about shane and ilya's story. he hasn't read the books, he told fans to go watch porn if they want more of shane and ilya's story, he made fun of lesbians for liking the show, he called hr's rise to success "mass psychosis," blatantly ignoring the profound emotional effect it has left on its viewers, hence its quick popularity, and called hudson too "chronically online" for stating he has gotten meaningful dms from queer athletes. so why do y'all still defend him like your baby daddy? because he's white right?” 32

@bruisinthesunn - “listing four or so grievances” and they’re multiple instances of Francois’ privacy being violated, and “the emoji pissed me off” 33

@capricorniia - “just for that thing to always leech onto him”, “I said oh I’m sure hagçois” “fç* i blame you”, “replace him with a hag Hunter”, “old fuckass hag”, “every French Canadian man will go to hell”, “klan members” 35

@clearthemazs - “I dont wanna see scott in s2 unless its ilya bullying the fuck outta him” (Scott comes to Ilya’s house to address homophobia and sexual assault in the league, Scott’s character is the character for change in the league), sharing cropped quotes to half a million views while joke-policing friends, “this legit could have all been solved if Francois was never cast as Scott” 38

@clearthemazs, continued “me pretending to be a make-a-wish child to meet francois arnaud” (clip of Breaking Bad where man in wheelchair detonates the building”) Death Threat - “francois arnaud spat in my food and killed my grandma“ 40

@Daddythv95 (Hudcon truther) - “20 years of your flop career” “ruining such a beautiful thing for his own greed” “@FrancoisArnaud you are such a bitch and too old to be this jealous of young talented people’s success”, “I just hope all three of my boyfriends (Taehyung, Hudson, Connor) are having a great day. 42

@daisycrown24757 - “Rachel kill Scott right now!!!!” 43

@dsrteagles - “chopswa” “franshit” “I’m more on the side of dating just based on how much franshit likes to drop breadcrumbs and feed into the rumors” - “#1 hag hater” - agebased insults to director Jacob Tierney 44

@dsrteagles backup, @flmencos - “#2 hag hater” “bruh im so fucking bored i hope francois *”, retweeting HudConcel @essexhoni using a homophobic slur on Hudson (in a thirst trap photo), “FUCK THAT BITCH FRANCOIS ALL MY BITCHES HATE FRANCOIS”, “that dirty taint hag is ruining connors life” 46

@erezlvr2 - doesn’t understand photo credits so sends hate 48

@fkazec - “Becoz he’s a fame whore just looking for attention” 49

@femmestorrie “you’re 40 years old fuck you”, “hudson highkey the only openly queer actor on the hr cast” (committing queer erasure rather than educating), “Let me check what that 40 year old is doing on threads rn”, “first tweet is me saying that hag leaves his younger bfs” 50

@enlisting (l in place of the L) - “I still had a little hate in my heart” 52

@forty4lh_ - “PUT THAT 40 year old grown man down now.” 53

@fruitsaladtea - “This fake activism is frying me. I'm more bisexual than Francois because I fvcked a woman before the ripe old age of 40” (biphobia), “As Francois's impending age induced heart attack”, “I don't think it's homophobia people are disgusted by cheaters” (posting relationships), “Hudson should be paid double to deal with that mess. I would hate to kiss Francois leftovers”, “Separating art from real life is not that hard” 54

@fondfarew3ll - “Hudson and Connor are the pairing we knew we needed. We hate Francois Arnaud.” 55

@fujo__wife (two spaces _ _) - “Francois fucked up my sandwich”, “they made it seem like i said kill him for being gay, no i said kill him for being

annoying”, death threat 56

@gigiZaika - “The 40-year-old actor who is trying to take advantage of Connor keeps invading Connor's private life and throwing shade at Haddon, and has alienated the friendship between the two main actors of HR who, until 3 weeks ago, were very close friends and were always together.”, “Oh my god, I want Hudson wrecking this relationship, I want cheating, I want Connor cucking François 'cause he couldn't resist Hudson during the filming...”, “He's so weird., he seems like a ghost following Connor everywhere... besides, he ended his long-term relationship as soon as he saw that Connor was becoming too famous... that's why the HR fandom hates him so much.” 57

@glowinghud - “gaining followers with all of this happening guys I'm not a good person I hate francois I support Hudson's polyamory be careful” 58

@glxships_ “I love Robbie <3 we need kip to be widowed in s2 so his character finally gets depth and a proper arc <3 <3 <3” “guys i don't want #him in europe we need to revoke his visa let's get to work please” 60

@graciebubblers - “f + c shippers this is not a safe space” “allergic to 🥐” “is he putting a hex on me?” “oh yeah death threats are funny”, “stealth francois hate? baby i hat that man loud and proud. i care deeply abt hudson which is why im in this damn comment section arguing with Neanderthals” 62

@goldenbcnes - “I won't say I hate them but That actor got too much dip on his chip for me and now I must hate them out of spite. Sorry to GK he ain't don't nothing to me”, “Francois is fueling rumors of Connor's dating life which he has said he doesn't want” 64

@HazyMelancholy - “He never cared about the show or the message (the first interviews he did about HR prove it), he's just an immature man who even in his 40s is thirsty for attention.” The interviews where he called out the NHL for lack of support of players. 66

@hausofjem - “KKKonnor stans should be happy Hudson already made it clear they're separate, yet yall still keep running to his fans to point it out like it's your full time job. Instead of being obsessed with H, why don't you focus that energy on KKKonnor dating that 40 y/o fleabag?” “homewrecker allegations”, “The way that I don't feel sorry now that connor is being outed because his fans acts like this 67

@heatedharrie - i'm deadazz two seconds away from grabbing a rope and a bucket and kicking the absolute shit out of that fucking bucket 68

@hintonsdrew - “fueling the dating rumors that very obviously made Connor uncomfortable”, GIFs of chair throwing at people’s head 70

@hudmatized, formerly @hllnders - “I’m pretty sure he just said “we are going to kill off scott hunter” - “we could’ve gotten Connor to walking down a runway today but he’s being held hostage by that dinosaur like we can never win” (Connor had a brand exclusivity deal preventing other runways) 71

@huddycore - “list of oldest people in the world” “some dude name Francois”, “why is Scott Hunter here?” 72

@hudsbian (Kyra) - “I wish he would try to die” - “I hate Francois ≠ im homophobic, you fucking egg”, “this girl is on this space joking about Francois calling her the n-word” response: “why you fuckkk me like that” racism; “concuck shipper or not”, if u want me to stop hudconning tell them to stop Doing That” (shipping), hating James Yeardley 73

@hudsbians (hudson manager) - ranting at an actor for a caption he had nothing to do with, because of a lack of understanding of how photo crediting works for photos posted on social media; “he must be homophobic for wanting to kill a gay” (about Cohen interview question), “can Francois fuck off? Nobody cares”. “Francois why is your 40 year old ass quoting stan twitter on yahoo news Canada but you can’t read DMs from closeted hockey players did we watch the same show????? Did we????” (Francois did not interview with yahoo news, they wrote a summary article. People misinterpreted this a new interview. Also listening to the second half of the DMs question would answer the question) 75

@hudsmuse - “if you say you hate francois arnaud and scott hunter u go to heaven” 76

@ilyushkadiaz - “I don't care about that chopped man or who he's dating but speaking on hollanov and calling it porn now changing his tune and milking it for attention bc the show got big is where I have a problem. Shut your veneers man” (January 14), “fuck that white man and his hideous teeth” (January 18), “both issues exist” - racism & homophobia (January 20), commenting that the fandom was doing too much on January 21 and 22, asking Connor to cheat on January 27, “white man’s feelings hurt” about threats (January 31), posting about relationship (Feb 3) after “he never even came out or anything…this is vile (January 28) about same person 77

@hudsoncultleader - “I rebuke the name of unholy one” 79

@karatomera - “shipping connor with an old white guy instead of the gorgeous sexy pretty handsome wasian that he has GENERATIONAL chemistry with is r*cist and i'm not backing down from that” (confusing characters for human people; actors date who they want and it may differ from what you want). “This has nothing to do with shipping (which is so immature to even mention) but everything to do with Francois's microaggressions and exclusionary and dismissive behavior toward a POC on the show.” Asked: “do you have a proof?”; deflected on providing examples of “the exclusionary and dismissive behavior toward a POC on the show” 80

@junchyyy - “I called him a hag cause he’s OLD”, “by the time im hag territory your ugly fave will be on hospice” 81

@ilyasrivalry - “francois being a source in a statement that insinuates we should sideline the asian lead who matters in representation just to make room for the white man who literally has one episode and nothing but a side character” (source credit is for a picture of Hudson, Connor, and Francois in a photobooth posted in December and taken from Francois’ Instagram, where industry standard is they don’t have to check before they repost it), “EVERYONE LITERALLY SKIPS YOUR DAMN EPISODE SHUT UPPPP” 82

@LunaticNation - “Let's just ignore François he clearly is attention seeker hungry let's just Skip him him like his episode 3 nobody watched”, “why do want attention and saying go watch the show pay attention closely like we didn't see your episode for a reason”, “I do agree not hating though Connor&Hudson should be together at shows as they are leads on the show and have François&Robbie together” (not understanding that this is private life outside of the show filming and promo season) 83

@jkslimpwrist - “and if I say francois arnaud is a clout chasing pathetic loser who has been desperate for this exact narrative to take center stage im the toxic homophobic fujo who has it out for an openly queer man. fuck him, and fuck his stans for feeding this racist bullshit” 84

@KimNana_95 “I don't wanna talk about bts. Just wanted to join the hate train on françois” 85

@kiwiluvrozanov - hopes Francois is not okay 86

@kyksnhe - banner says “no lgbt, no Francois Arnaud”, wants to nuke Quebec, “like this tweet if you hate Francois arnaud I’m trying to see something”, “never seen someone so mad to be called his age”, “but he the only openly queer actor ya know”, “for what? hating the only openly gay hockey player?” “@francois. Omg you’re like 60 years old.” 88

@kylexnyc - portraying The Long Game as having no Scott Hunter content in it 89

@landlleopard (bea) - screenshots exist of this account allegedly implying hagsois is a rapist. Account quickly deactivated. 90

@lesearth - “creepy thing”, “he is so morbid”, “creepy 40 year old that’s always up your ass”, the 40 year old is outing him”, “legit wishing he gets gout,” “chronically online and a creep at 40” “go back to the nursing home” 91

@lickylickyl (Rei) - posting Nazi swastikas, klan hoods, and a song that repeatedly says the N-word including wishes of death, and says “we hate Jews” 93

@livslangdon - no mentions of Francois before January 13, then engages in libel, “you can tell francois think he really deserve to live.”, “francois going to hell sorry i'm not even trying to do discourse he's just weird and corny and old and the age gap is very very odd and anyone defending it is also a strange individual” 95

@lovess_pinkgurl - “and he’s supposed to be bi” (biphobia), “hudson vs. f the 40 year old….” (ship wars), “that old man’s tea”, “if you support that man that means you support his racist fans #blocked”, 96

@loveiaria - “washed up actor”, “look at this dinosaur”, “being shady in the most childish way possible”, “trying to make Hollanov poly”, “Connor was being linked to that hag”, “why was that man quiet when they were in paris”, “he’s a fucking child”, “fuel dating rumors to stay relevant”, posting paparazzi photos of Hudson while talking about “that 40 year old man chasing clout by constantly using c” (mentioning bc of irony/double standard, failure to recognize those are paparazzi pictures) 97

@loveiaria continued 99

@mercurified - “go back to 10 years, he’s 30 and connor is 15. age difference doesn’t work like that sweetheart” - Time Travel pedophilia allegations. “the fact that this delusional people think that the reason people hate f and the idea of f and connor is them shipping connor and hudson. lmao sure. it's about f beind a pedo and a creep” 100

@MILFS_R_HOT: posting the N-word to twitter spaces and attributing that N-word to Francois, to manufacture invented racisms on a Twitter space (rather than focusing on actual racism very much occurring). Also made a merge of Francois and Charlie Kirk’s faces 101

@MsIngridA -“Get that 40 year old alway from Connor!!! Ewww.” “Eewww! Get that grandpa Francois Arnaud away from Connor!” “Ten11 said those two fuckers Francois and Connor are not about to mess up their business and comments! Delete!!!?” 103

@nik_hr1 “even ChatGPT knows about #cokecois”, “hagcois rats” “if you like or are neutral on that hag this isn’t the gc for you and you will be kicked out if we see anything pointing to you liking 🥐”, “cokecois needs rehab”, using Deuxmoi as a reliable source 104

@organickingstk - “autoblock for hagcois fans” 105

@orxngeblossom - timeline of radicalization starting January 15 106

@peggyruinnyy - calling fandom “kkk members”, “can they just admit already so all of this hullshit can end and people can leave Hudson the fuck alone, overlapped, cheated couldn’t resist the viagra I don’t care just say it so the white man tears can dry” (so the issue is cheating? shipping??), taking someone saying “I’ve never said they’re together” and spinning that into declaring two people are cheating. 111

@pcyleclercs - “all of this is factual and provides reasons as to why this can rub a lot of people the wrong way as explanation of where the dislike is coming from”, made a “compiled list of things that he has done”, a list which included a picture of a pool and the question of which fictional characters would you sleep with or marry (it’s fictional) 114

@puppymdiva - “Francois Arnaud you stinky ass bitch” 115

@R0ZAN0VS - “if that man is next to connor, y’all better just drop him out and Keep it moving; it’s time he stops getting a reaction out of used this is about connor and connor only” “I hope Hudcon move into apartments next to each other for season 2” “they were probably spending most the time together in one of the apartments anyway so you have a point” - “they say the women are the problem in the fandom, the women are the fetishizers… of course the bed is gonna be made. Never heard of room service before.” “Roselana and Hudcon stocks too high” (Roselana = characters, Hudcon = people), sees Francois Arnaud on runway at CCA and thinks “OH MY GOD HUDCON ARE COMING” 116

@royalsjaem - “I WANT SCOTT IN PRISON” “I’M GONNA COMMIT CRIMES” 118

@rozanigga , formerly @eightyonepilot - posting Nazi swastikas and KKK hoods, saying Francois spreads lice, calls for doxxing 119

@rozanovschain - “GO BACK INTO YOUR NURSING HOME” 120

@rpfendorser “streets are saying Scott Hunter and his boyfriend are Trump supporters”, the anti Francois brigade keeps growing we’re a community”, cyanide 121

@rryfreak - “I heard the actor who plays scott hagter is a trumpie #weird” - “#Recast Scott” 122

@rwrbfan_yours - “Hiding the asian lead to promote a white old leach is disgusting. The original post highlighted the creator of the book, show and the 2 leads. But you are desperate racists who so badly want to erase Shane and destroy the hr fandom to promote a pedo relationship” -“You all are so worthless, you ran to support a 40 year old pedo who has been unsuccessfully and desperately wants to make a name for himself and got jealous and insecure when an unknown 24 year old wasian+” “You all are so worthless, you ran to support a 40 year old pedo who has been unsuccessfully and desperately wants to make a name for himself and got jealous and insecure when an unknown 24 year old wasian+” 123

@rozanovakgae - “fuck grandpois” 124

@sadboijacobs - not that much a hater, but definitely went to don’t-ask-don’t-tell and career protectionism arguments for the fave, rather than being okay with the possibility of dating being either true or not true. granting autonomy to the actor to choose their life. Puts an embargo on talking about two actors/coworkers next to each other. Francois existing near Connor is “overshadowing” Connor. 126

@SakuraBlos62994 - “It's becoming more obvious this is PR for Francois, and Connor is too nice to say no. They're not together.” “He is doing anything he can to draw attention to himself and Connor meanwhile Connor says he wants privacy” “They might claim to be a fan but they're not really. If they were a fan they would support Connor's friendships.”

“Francois is jealous of hudcon's success and is piggybacking off Connor. Connor lets him because he is nice. Francois is attention seeking and isn't stupid.” “They're not Connor's fans. They're racist gay men projecting on him and claiming to be a fan. They're here for the drama.” 127

@shanehollanders (I after the L, in hoLIANDERS) - “he didn't even audition he got the role handed to him. he didn't wanna do it until his old agent convinced him to take it. he's first billed but ultimately no one knows him nor cared bc he's so untalented that he's resorting to tabloid rumor mills to get his name out there” (factually incorrect, every statement except “he is first billed”) 128

@shanesrozanovs - “must not be a 🥐 fan or you'll probably be offended“ 129

@shannyofc - calling someone a “40 year old man child” for using Instagram, telling fans to k*s for blocking without interaction, has “fr4nc0is Stan’s not welcomed” 130

shattrdsapphire - “fuck connor FUCK francois and fuck anyone who is ruining the reputation of this amazing beautiful show” “i hate that i even have to diss connor bc before francois spilled their tea on yahooo i do not care for bitches being messy and giving my fav show a bad reputation thank youuuu” 131

@snoopffy - “He Must Die” about Scott Hunter, “Francois is like a demon vampire dinosaur from hell” 132

@stunninmarie - “like the hag was dating women all his life and decided at 35 he bisexual an yall like to pretend he’s just gay and don’t like women… he was a straight man for years boo” - “it’s a fan of that old chopped hag” 134

@valedecem_ - claimed “that old man doesn’t care about that because when you’re besties with JJ it’s okay” (Just Jared myth), “I care about fictional couples and not real life ones because they are non of my business” “I need F to tell me if he’s that agile account on TikTok.” 136

@Vanillapie0 - “I’ll turn him straight” (gay conversion therapy); also he’s bisexual, so if he consented to be with you, he’d stay bisexual. 137

@wanghairong14, now @nidielailo14 “I hope that tomorrow morning, the moment I open my eyes, I'll get the good news that Francois is dead” “The only news I wanna hear about this dumbass is that he's got AIDS and is ready to croak” “Gays have never respected women. Fuck, which eye of these brain-dead idiots saw that those two are together???? Fuck, I hope they get AIDS and die.” 138

@weloverozy - “that bucktoothed bitch is going to hell”, starting hate trains on Hudson fans 139

@xc241018 - “That’s why I hate the gay men in this fandom” (español), 140

@ya0izzz - asking if Hudson (not out) is a top or bottom, “men can joke about an allegedly confirmed gay relationship (connor isn’t out) and it’s alles gut and not disgusting or parasocial at all”, “i mean IF they are fr together the last thing he should be doing is hinting at it when he should know better than to take up the spotlight WITH his newbie boyfriend”, “francois feeding into the shit to begin with was seen as attention seeking and weird”, “a fucking month worth of tabloids about your hidden relationship can” 141

@16carraige - “I hope it swallowed a knife” “Oh Francois, I hope karma gets you, and gets you good. Baguette eating cunt.” “It’s yall pedoshippers that need to be worried.” “If anything, he was STRAIGHT 8 times years ago” “Francois IS a p3do and a groomer” - “I still don’t understand how there are still Connor and Francois hybrids out there, I really could spit in their face if we crossed paths” 142

@pinkst3rs “like we are in hell because of it #freeus an #killscotthunter”144

@alwaysbsumbody - “because why would you as a Hudson Williams fan account about his clothes be posting that annoying hag?”

All of this Francois hate is disingenuous. The only reason you dislike him is because you want Hudson and Connor to date and he poses a threat to that. Please stop trying to make up other reasons and just own up to that. Be a grown up.

He is ruining such a beautiful thing just for his own greed. Like come on man you got your flowers after 20 years of your flop career but instead of being appreciative about it you are running your nasty mouth and pr against one of the main leads that carried the show. Be humble he doesn't care about heated rivalry. he doesn't care about what's the show means for people. what he wants is clout (no matter how he gets it) and he won't look at who he drags along the way to reach for what he wants.

His partner, actor François Arnaud (Midnight Texas, Yellowjackets), played a major role in helping him focus. Man I literally don't know that bc I don't venture into that side of twitter. Both issues exist so let's not gaslight people into thinking one is bigger than the other or racism H faces is not real or it's just a weapon to justify something else i never said it wasn't real or that one was worse than the other 😐 my ENTIRE point was that we shouldn't be using the very REAL issue of racism as some tool to justify homophobia.

DEADLINE: I do like that this one episode, I guess, is more relationship/romance focused than the whole Ilya/Shane chaos, which is fun too, but—
ARNAUD: A different kind of porn category.
DEADLINE: Exactly. But it also makes me wonder, is there a potential for a love triangle?
ARNAUD: Is there a potential for like a foursome?
DEADLINE: Maybe, or love quad, whatever—
ARNAUD: Certainly not this season. I know that in the books, I think Scott and Ilya get close. I don’t know in what capacity. Well, [Ilya] says it in the first episode, “He’s hot.”

@MILFS_R_HOT: posting the N-word to twitter spaces and attributing that N-word to Francois, to manufacture invented racisms on a Twitter space (rather than focusing on actual racism very much occurring). Also made a merge of Francois and Charlie Kirk's faces

[Watermark added, in purples, to devalue the image - tried to balance the reporting of this incident of racism-manufacturing with the potential for the image to spread. The original image is not purple. This tweet is still up five days after being reported to Twitter.]

Oh even ChatGPT knows about #cokecois
@graciebubbers what have you started HAHAHAHAHAHA
ChatGPT 5.2
What does cokecois mean
“Cokecois” is fandom slang built as a mash-up:
“coke” → used as a shady/jokey insinuation about chaotic or messy behavior
“-cois” → pulled from the name Francois
Put together, it’s a snarky nickname people use to mock or stir drama around someone named Francois. It's not a real word—just provocative wordplay that implies “messy/chaotic Francois” in a gossipy way.

Yes, because you can't arrive at the private terminal. The plane isn't a bus, dropping you off first. And they aren't pulling your luggage to send it to a private terminal at arrival either. Only a private departure gate. And all paps know the NY/LA arrival and departure times

An objectively evil homophobe like you who do a smear campaign is not a queer ally either. You just twist his words because you want to feel morally superior about harassing a stranger. Funny, you say nothing about the death threats he got and get triggered by a tame comment

"smear campaign" and it's that man not being able to shut his nasty mouth, talking about his co-worker's private life and encouraging people to speculate about his sexuality when he has stated multiple times that he doesn't want it

Allodolo @Mtvgdsxgff · 1/18/26
You are trying to demonise him because you are a homophobe. You are objectively a bad person. It's ironic that you act like he is a monster when you got one in the mirror everyday you look at one.

You are objectively evil

@pcyleclercs - “all of this is factual and provides reasons as to why this can rub a lot of people the wrong way as explanation of where the dislike is coming from”, made a “compiled list of things that he has done”, a list which included a picture of a pool and the question of which fictional characters would you sleep with or marry (it’s fictional)

🧵 a compiled list of things that he has done. all of this is factual and provides reasons as to why this can rub a lot of people the wrong way as explanation of where the dislike is stemming from.
please dm me nicely if there is something I need to correct!
notes: this isn't done chronologically, I have sort of grouped things together for easier reading. if I have facts wrong, please let me know nicely so I can correct it, because I am not making things up to dislike this man, I am basing everything in this list on factual things he has done/said and am explaining why they are weird and problematic as to why people will not like him, including myself. I have tried to avoid including anything speculative.

@sadboijacobs - not that much a hater, but definitely went to don't-ask-don't-tell and career protectionism arguments for the fave, rather than being okay with the possibility of dating being either true or not true. granting autonomy to the actor to choose their life. I'm sorry, but this is just straight up a lie. His old managers told him not to do it because it was a small show and they didn't even read the script, he accepted the role and changed his team. He talks about this in an interview (CBS I think ??
Arnaud responded that he “always believed in it, and I thought it would find an audience.” That was even against his management team’s wishes, as he revealed — “All my managers refused to read it,” he said. “They were like, ‘We can’t pitch you for big things if you’re gonna be doing a random miniseries abroad.’” Those are famous last words if ever we’ve heard them. And yes, Arnaud confirmed that he’s “with different managers now.”

which is why francois feeding into the shit to begin with was seen as attention seeking and weird bc if and i mean IF they are fr together the last thing he should be doing is hinting at it when he should know better than to take up the spotlight WITH his newbie boyfriend at such a pivotal time in his career when everyone in homophobic hollywood is looking to label and typecast him and ruin his chances at providing a blank slate for a multitude of directors but what do i know

@16carraige - “I hope it swallowed a knife” “Oh Francois, I hope karma gets you, and gets you good. Baguette eating cunt.” “It’s yall pedoshippers that need to be worried.” “If anything, he was STRAIGHT 8 times years ago” “Francois IS a p3do and a groomer” - “I still don’t understand how there are still Connor and Francois hybrids out there, I really could spit in their face if we crossed paths”

Francois has had WAY more girlfriends than he has been with a man....if anything he was STRAIGHT 8 years ago.
The only difference btw him and Hudson is dog years

It is so vile to see you misappropriating language about child sexual abuse and victimization to explain a potential relationship between two of age adults. Like it's actually disgusting and survivors of CSA see that shit, just fyi.

Well, Francois IS a p3do and a groomer.
And that's not gonna change because y'all are enabling it.
He needs to date he's fellow ancient deities

Ever since Francois opened his mouth, who has been doing damage control ? Hudson.
Francois is the most unprofessional piece of shit I've ever seen, ANYBODY could've replaced him as Scott hunter.

and isn’t reducing shane and ilya’s story to porn an issue here.. yall threat people not caring about side characters as terrorism while actively referring to the main characters storyline(who are also queer) as porn so where do we go from here

the concept of the main leads not doing promo together

I think at this point its an intentional move by both their teams. I think they're purposefully separating them to build their own individual careers as actors/performers in the eyes of the general public. They'll only do promo together closer to S2 premiering.

no francois should not have been the lead actor in heated rivalry cuz he is not a wasian man in his 20s.. he could barely act out his minimal dialogue i cant imagine what it would have been like if he had any more screen time
